Today's Weather: Tiny, tapering off

MEGA STAR IN "LOVE DOLL" KERFUZZLE

In the twenty-first century, we are used to celebrity endorsements of various products, even those in the adult industry. Ever since the historic Jeff Stryker dildo of the late 1980's, fans have been able to pleasure themselves with the simulated orifices and protrusions of a variety of stars and starlettes. But now, Placido Flamingo, beloved ultrastar and international "it" fowl, has found himself in the midst of yet another sex scandal of the sort that seems to plague so many of today's famous. If he will be able to escape from the limed twigs of a muckraking maelstrom with his feathers unbarred remains to be seen.

At a press conference held at his wintertime Boca Raton aerie, lawyers for the Flamingo Trust issued a cease and desist order against the manufacturers of the "Plastico Flamingo Super Vibrate Pleasure Doll", seen for sale above in a New York sex shop. The doll, whose package boasts "Three Fanny(sic) Love Holes" and "realistic Beak(sic) actoin(also sic), seems to be based on Placido in his famous role of "Flamingo#6" in "Catching Some ZZZs: The Vacation of Zorro".

"This rampant exploitation of Placido Flamingo's good name and image must stop." said a representative of the firm Peak and Sneek, attorneys and ornithologists, "It's a shame that in this day and age a bunch of hucksters can bring such a raunchy product to market, especially when they do so three months before Mr Flamingo was preparing to release his own inflatable affection device, which will be much much better anyway, so there"

Placido himself was not available for direct comment. His current whereabouts are a mystery, but he is rumoured to deeply involved in peace negotiations between the People's Lawn Flamingo Army and their bitter enemies Gnome Mas!, the radical faction of the World Wide Order of Garden Gnomes. But his attempts to keep the peace abroad may ultimately result in continuing damage to his reputation at home. For now we can only wait and see.
